Rather excellent PVC and latex site, for those who like to go squelch.

ATROCITIES

Magnificence at every turn. This is my favourite classic Goth clothing site, for those who prefer their elegance subtly understated, or ornate. No tat, no tack. It hadn't been updated for a while, so I asked Kambriel about it, and her name. 'Your inquiry as to the origins of my name is rather sweet... and I'm happy to explain to the best of my ability. It's all rather a mystery really – when I was young, it seemed to be whispered in my ear one evening whilst I was sitting alone thinking, and I have been going by this name and creating artwork under it ever since. I am actually also planning to introduce an offshoot from Atrocities called 'Kambriel – Betwixt Today and Timelessness' for my more one of a kind, ornate designs like the ones I've created for Monica Richards... I should have an introductory website for this line up soon at: www.atrocities.com/kambriel
'In regards to our website update, it's nothing that will change things dramatically, we're just going to re-vamp a bit, improving the quality of the photos a bit, and introducing some new designs. Basically just the things we should be doing. The overall feel though shall remain, as we view the progression of the website much as we do the progression of our designs. There shall be a continual growth and development, but the new inspirations will evolve comfortably and naturally from that which is there already.'

ATTITUDE CLOTHING CO.

Site looks initially wanky but turns out swanky. Nice female Gothic section, firmly rooted in lush romanticism and not expensive by any means. Blokes are foppish, but nice Pecci shirt to help us forget the frightening bondage ensembles. Interesting accessories, including see-through PVC wristbands.

It's that funny Batty woman again, which is understandable as it's her company. She pops up everywhere. 'Azrael's
